BOI Update!

To recap, Paul Neiffer in the email he sent today, this seems to be quite a remarkable occurrence. Yesterday, December 26, the Fifth Circuit vacated its original ruling lifting the injunction from December 23rd, 2024.

This means there is an expedited appeals process going on right now. We assume they will make a ruling very shortly.

You will need to make the decision for yourself and decide if you want to file it now or wait. We believe it will likely pass, so to avoid penalties, we are advising you to file now. If they require the filing of this report during the upcoming tax season, you will likely be responsible for it, as our time will be extremely limited for help during this time frame.
